

I am deeply concerned by the current trend in our nation to support the attempts of the media companies to restrict the ways I use their content. My fair use rights are already being violated by recent laws and I urge you to stop this immediately.

Claiming that these things are being done to stop piracy is a smoke-screen used by the media companies to make their intentions seem honorable. It is a smokescreen because piracy is already illegal. We do not need any additional laws to make piracy illegal. Lets leave it alone and prosecute the pirates for the laws they are ALREADY BREAKING. Leave my fair use rights intact.

Also, these new laws will not stop pirates. As a computer professional I know how easy it is to break through security measures given time and effort. If somebody wants to break the law and make illegal copies, they will be able to do it even with new legislation and new protections.

Please leave my fair use rights intact. Don't take them away in the name of preventing piracy. Prosecute the pirates for the laws they've already broken.

Thank you for your time,
Brian
